4. The Tavern was originally built in 1772, and was rebuilt on the original foundations after it burned to the ground in 1784.

5. The plans for the 1784 structure were drawn up by Brother Marschall under the building committee which was comprised of the Aufseher Collegium and the Brethren Meyer and Blum.
    Cornelius Sale made the roof tiles, and Gottlob Krause and William Volk were the masons.

6. Old Salem has on file photographs of the Tavern which date ca.
    1880 and later. Other visual representations of the building can be found in the following documents of which copies are on file at Old Salem:

8. The building was used originally as a Tavern for the townspeople and visitors. It contained rooms to lodge visitors to Old Salem. Today it is used as an exhibit building in Old Salem.

9. The historic district of Old Salem was designated a "Registered National Historic Landmark" by the U. S. Department of the Interior in 1966. Within this landmark are unrestored, restored and reconstructed buildings, which, as a whole, present an authentic architectural representation of the community of Salem between 1766 and 1856. This structure is considered by the Historic District Commission to be an integral and contributing part of the total landscape and subject to Zoning Ordinance Section 29-1, strictly governing its use and appearance.
The Salem Tavern was originally built in 1772,\textsuperscript{5} and was operated by Brother and Sister Jacob Meyer from Bethabara. The two storey brick building was rebuilt, partly on the original foundations, after it burned to the ground in 1784.\textsuperscript{6}

The Salem Tavern, managed by the Salem Congregation through various tavernkeepers, was a necessity for accommodating visitors to Salem. Interestingly, the site chosen was one far from the square, the site of public worship, and the front facade lacked windows, probably to prevent youngsters from looking into the bar. Throughout the minutes of the Aufseher Collegium, complaints were made about the selling of a large amount of drinks to the Brethren, emphasizing that the Brethren were only permitted to carry out alcohol for use in their home in order to prevent them from congregating with the strangers.

The Tavern required many out-buildings to remain self-sufficient. The Tavern had its own farm and cattle, the operators cured their own meat\textsuperscript{7} and baked their own bread.\textsuperscript{8}

The living quarters and care of the strangers, who sometimes stayed at the Tavern for a week or more, was carefully controlled by the Salem Congregation. The popularity of the Salem Tavern grew with outsiders so much that by 1805, rooms were added in the attic; and by 1816, a dining room and an eight room house for sleeping quarters were annexed.\textsuperscript{9}

The Salem Tavern is significant because it is a contributing structure to the streetscape of Old Salem. Architecturally it is significant as an example of the early building construction of the town. The Tavern played an important role in the early life of the Moravians, being a place to provide lodgings for visitors, and as an opportunity for contact with the community outside of Salem.

The Tavern was carefully restored to its 18th century appearance under the direction of Old Salem, Inc. in 1956, and is now used as an exhibit building.

10. The Salem Tavern was carefully restored under the direction of Old Salem, Inc. in 1956.

11. The Salem Tavern is currently a contributing structure in the Old Salem Historic District, a Registered National Historic Landmark. It is also listed in Frontier to Factory: An Architectural History of Forsyth County.
